DRIVER OF DEATH CAR IN CUSTODY

ARRESTED BY DEPUTY SHERIFF
VERNE LARKIN NEAR
MT. MERIDIAN

TERRE HAUTE MAN

Accident Occurred On National Road West Of Plainfield
Thursday Afternoon

Verne Larkin, Mt. Meridian garage owner and a deputy sheriff of Putnam county, was responsible for the arrest of a Terre Haute man, late Thursday afternoon of the 18th, who was driving a car which had killed a man west of Plainfield on the National Road. The man was Harvey N. Chinn, 36, assistant professor at Rose Polytechnic, Terre Haute, who was working with the Indiana state highway department surveying crew.

According to reports, Spencer ran out of gas a short distance east of Meridian. Mr. Larkin, busy at the garage was informed by a passer-by that some man was in trouble and immediately set out. He reached the stalled car, which had broken glass in the windshield and headlights and a damaged front fender. He also found the driver in an intoxicated condition.

State policeman James Watts and William Ashworth, deputy sheriff of Greencastle, arrived on the scene and Spencer was taken to Danville and then to State police headquarters at Indianapolis. The officers charged that Spencer resisted arrest and was only subdued after a struggle.

Chinn's death from the car of the late-and-run driver aroused highway department officials who said every effort will be made to prosecute the person responsible. State police, meanwhile, talked with Robert Hall, living west of Plainfield, who testified the driver of the death car was intoxicated.

Hall told officials he was picked up by Spencer while hitch hiking from Indianapolis to his home, but that after riding a short distance he got out.

"I knew it was dangerous to be with him," Hall was quoted as saying. "He was so drunk he could hardly steer the car."

Chinn, who joined the Highway Department crew only last Monday, was working with R. M. Hole of Indianapolis when he was struck.

Denying all knowledge of the accident, Spencer demanded to know why he had been arrested.

He admitted "being pretty drunk," and then immediately denied that he was.

He declared he didn't recall where he had been and then insisted that he had stopped carefully at a traffic light in Plainfield.

Capt. Matt Leach of the State Police Department said charges of involuntary manslaughter will be placed against the man.

Shelby's arrest came fifteen or twenty minutes after news of the tragedy was broadcast by radio and telephone.

Mr. Chinn was a nephew of Mrs. J. E. Courtney of Greencastle. He is survived by the widow and two small children.

DEMOCRATIC FIGHT LOOMS ON 2-3 RULE

BATTLE BETWEEN CITY AND RURAL VOTERS SEEN AT CONVENTION

FARLEY OPPOSED TO RULE

Rural Delegates Demand That Two-Thirds Rule Be Retained By Democratic Party

PHILADELPHIA, June 19, (UP)—Democrats are being driven toward a fight between rural and city voters for control of the party at their national convention next week.

The issue of whether the presidential candidate must obtain two-thirds of the 1,100 votes to be nominated instead of a simple majority appeared today to be the start of a battle that may leave scars long after the last delegate has gone home and put his badge in moth balls.

Early delegates are chiefly from the agrarian south and west. They are almost unanimous in demanding that the two-thirds rule—established in the days of Andrew Jackson—be retained. It is their only weapon, they say, against domination of the party from the big cities of the east and north. Once Dixie unites against a candidate under the present system, his cause is lost because enough votes can be mustered to keep him from getting the necessary two-thirds.

Postmaster General James A. Farley spoke for the populous east when he said that he personally favored the abolition of the two-thirds rule. The argument of that faction is that the most votes come from the big cities and that no section should be allowed to veto the will of the majority.

"The Democratic party," said one delegate who declined to allow his name to be used, "was organized by and for the little fellow. The only way the little fellow can keep the Democratic party is to keep control of it. Most of the little fellows are where I am from—the south and the west. That's why we want to keep the two-thirds rule."

Farley tried to break the two-thirds rule in 1932 at a time when President Roosevelt's nomination was in the balance. He retreated from his position when the rural delegates threatened revolt.

The committee which will bring this battle to the floor at the convention is headed by a chubby, red-faced man who has had personal experience with the workings of the two-thirds rule. He is Senator Bennett C. Clark of Missouri, son of the late Champ Clark, former speaker of the house.

At the 1912 convention at Baltimore, Champ Clark, a leading candidate for the nomination, surged across the majority line but never could get the necessary two-thirds of the votes. Woodrow Wilson was nominated. It was a vivid lesson to Bennett Clark on how the will of the majority can be thwarted by rules. He will come to Philadelphia ready to battle to the limit to scrap the rule.

It will be the one big fight of the convention. There is little dissent on the platform among early arrivals. Most of them expect planks indorsing the objectives of new deal legislation with particular emphasis on Mr. Roosevelt's "forgotten man" theme of 1932.

President Roosevelt's renomination is assured, of course, and today there was talk that it would not even be necessary to take a ballot—that he and Vice President John N. Garner would win by acclamation. That will not be settled until Farley returns to town today or tomorrow.

Philadelphia has the flags up, and hotel space is getting scarce. Extra men are being put to work in the hotels and today's worry was where to get competent bartenders for the convention rush. Hotel men explained that they wanted real bartenders—"not just men who can draw a glass of beer"—because the southerners were expected to demand such exotic drinks as "Stonewall Jacksons." Rumor says a Stonewall Jackson is some combination of Scotch and blackberry juice, but no one here is certain.

Drug Addicts Riot On Train

EIGHT FEDERAL PRISONERS
SUBDUED BY OFFICERS
AFTER UPRISING

CHICAGO, June 19, (UP)—Eight federal prisoners crying for narcotics rioted on a train last night as they were being taken from Toledo, O., to the Leavenworth, Kan., penitentiary. Guards subdued them after 20 minutes of furious milling as the train rolled into a Chicago station.

Police summoned to help escort the prisoners between stations here later said several of them were bruised and battered. None of their injuries appeared serious.

Officers quoted J. T. Sell, United States marshal from Toledo who accompanied the prisoners, as saying that their handcuffs were removed near Elkhart, Ind., to permit them to play cards. Leg shackles were retained.

Several of the prisoners had been sentenced for narcotic law violations. When their handcuffs were removed, they began to mutter. One of them cried:

"Give us some dope. We've got to have it."

Sell explained he could not give it to them. One of the prisoners hurled a card table at him, and knocked him to the floor.

The other prisoners joined in the attack, breaking windows, and throwing other tables. The officers subdued them with fists and gun butts and replaced their handcuffs. Chicago police met the train at a suburban station and accompanied it into the city.

Officers and prisoners were the only persons in the special car.

The prisoners were quiet when they boarded another train for Leavenworth, police reported. Prisoners names were not divulged.

France Favors Britain Policy

JOINS WITH ENGLAND TO URGE LIFTING OF SANCTIONS AGAINST ITALY

PARIS, June 19, (UP)—France joined Great Britain in a new policy today when the cabinet agreed to follow London's example and advocate abolition of league sanctions against Italy.

The government accepted the proposal to raise sanctions after a report on foreign affairs by Yves Delbos, foreign minister, and after studying British Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's house of commons speech in which he advocated an Anglo-French-German understanding to secure European peace.

The French delegation to the league council on June 26 and the June 30 extraordinary assembly will be instructed to vote for appointment of a committee to effect termination of the economic siege against Italy.

The league voted anti-Italian sanctions last October when Italy was declared an aggressor nation after Black Shirt troops poured across the Mareh river to what proved to be speedy conquest of Emperor Haile Selassie's ancient realm.

Motorists Ignore Street Crossings

DETOUR TRAFFIC PRESENTS
DANGEROUS SITUATION IN THIS CITY

The recent influx of heavy traffic in Greencastle, due to the detour of road 40 through the city, has caused two street intersections to become dangerous.

One of the more threatening hazards is the crossing at Bloomington and Seminary streets. One serious collision has occurred this week and unless caution is observed, this corner may be the scene of possibly a fatal mishap.

Foreign cars traveling north on Bloomington approach the corner at a speed sometimes estimated at between forty-five and fifty miles per hour. Drivers, unaware that the crossing is made doubly dangerous by the interurban line, cross the tracks without looking to see if a traction car is approaching. It has been suggested that warning signs of the rail crossing be painted on the pavement.

Last week, when hundreds of autos were in the city, it was noted that drivers traveling on Seminary narrowly averted collision with cars traveling on Bloomington—each motorist having the impression that he had the right of way. Stop signs are erected on both streets but little or no attention is paid them by out of town drivers. The new caution light at Anderson and Bloomington streets is frequently ignored.

Another hazard is the corner of Bloomington and Washington streets. There have been bad accidents in the past at this intersection and unless drivers are more careful this may also be a death trap.

Vincent Auriol, minister of finance, told the chamber of deputies today in his long awaited report on national finances.

NEW DEAL TREASURY IS REPLENISHED

HUGE SUM APPROPRIATED BY CONGRESS FOR POOR RELIEF

FLORIDA CANAL ABANDONED

Tax Bill Now Only Major Obstacle
Before Opening Of Democrat
Convention

WASHINGTON, June 19, (UP)—Congress replenished the new deal's relief treasury today with $1,425,000,000 to care for millions of unemployed in 1937 when the senate accepted a conference report and completed action on the $2,430,000,000 deficiency bill.

Facing only one more big hurdle—the tax bill—in the race for adjournment before the Democratic convention meets in Philadelphia next Tuesday, administration leaders gave up their fight for the Florida ship canal. They had sought to make possible a $10,000,000 appropriation to continue digging, but the house rejected it yesterday shortly after its chief sponsor, Senator Duncan C. Fletcher, Democrat, Florida, had died.

Besides carrying relief funds, the deficiency bill provides $137,800,000 for the social security program initiated last year, $41,100,000 for the Tennessee Valley Authority, $400,000 for continuation of the Federal Communication Commission's investigation into the American Telephone and Telegraph Company and many other miscellaneous items.

The senate's acceptance of house action on the ship canal leaves only President Roosevelt's signature necessary to make the bill a law.

The relief bill came out of the hopper bearing evidence of Republican alteration attempts. Most important change is an amendment inserted in the senate in line with a vigorous fight by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, Michigan, prohibiting the start of projects with relief funds unless all the money necessary is "allocated and irrevocably set aside."

This was the nub of Vandenberg's objection to the ship canal. Started with $5,000,000 from last year's relief fund, the canal would require an estimated total of $150,000,000 or more. The Michigan Republican argued that not only was this committing the government without congressional authorization, but it amounted to wasting the $5,000,000 unless more money were sent after it.

He used the same argument effectively in persuading the senate to refuse further funds to the Passamaquoddy tidal dam in Maine, a $30,000,000 project started with $10,000,000 from relief funds.

Two other changes made after the bill was introduced were not connected with the Republican fight. One authorized the Public Works Administration to use a $30,000,000 revolving fund to make loans and grants for large scale public construction. The other turned the relief fund directly over to President Roosevelt instead of to Harry J. Hopkins, Works Progress Administrator.

The senate later shoved through a conference report on the $120,000,000 interior department appropriation and sent it to the White House. Previously it had cleared its consent calendar of scores of minor bills.

Lindbergh Law Violator Hangs

ARTHUR GOOCH DIES ON GALLOWS FOR KIDNAPING TWO

McALESTER, Okla., June 19. (UP)—Arthur Gooch, 27, who kidnaped two Texas officers and released them unharmed after carrying them into Oklahoma, was hanged today, first person to die for violation of the Lindbergh law.

Gooch dropped through the trap at 5:07 a. m. and was declared dead about 15 minutes later. Until the last he hoped for executive clemency.

Gooch was convicted of kidnaping R. N. Baker and H. R. Marks in Paris, Tex., in order to escape arrest. The men were released at Snow, Okla., unharmed except for a cut. Baker suffered when he fell against a plate glass in a scuffle with Gooch and Ambrose Nix, who was slain by officers at Okemah when Gooch was captured.

Gooch showed no emotion as he mounted the steps of the 18-foot gallows. He told U. S. Deputy Marshal George Hall he had no statement to make.

Doctors waited several minutes after examining the body before they pronounced Gooch officially dead.

A crowd of approximately 300, including prison and state officials, watched him die. Rich Owen, prison executioner, who has sent 53 men to death, tripped the drop.

Gooch's final hope for clemency did not fail until last night when President Roosevelt denied an appeal for a pardon.

"The president didn't read my letter," he moaned. "I didn't think the president should have issued a statement."

Gooch's greatest hope for clemency lay in the fact that such desperate characters as Alvin Karpis, William Mahan, Harry Campbell, and Thomas Robinson, Jr.—men who killed or kidnaped and demanded and collected ransom—were permitted to plead guilty and receive prison sentences.

One of Gooch's last messages was to Mrs. Roosevelt, asking her to use her influence with the president.

CUT OFF BY WRECK VICTIM; WIDOW SUES

Earlier, Eker had denied divorce. In the suit, Mrs. Eker names the Engineers' Insurance Association and Louis Eker, asking $3,000, charging that Eker several months ago struck out his wife as beneficiary of his insurance policy and substituted Louis, his brother.

Third Party To Be Announced

SUPPORT OF COUGHLIN AND TOWNSEND EXPECTED BY ORGANIZERS

NEW YORK, June 19 (UP)—The launching of a third party intended to attract the support of Father Charles E. Coughlin's national union for social justice, the Townsend Old age pension group, the remnants of the late Huey P. Long's "share the wealth" adherents, and various inflationary factions, was anticipated in political circles today.

Chief Prophet of a new entry in the 1936 presidential sweepstakes was Coughlin, who told the United Press last night that he expected the announcement of a candidacy for president on a third party ticket some time today in either New York, Boston, or Washington. Coughlin was working on a radio speech he will deliver tonight (at 8:45 p. m. CST) which will contain an endorsement of the candidate, provided he announces in time and his platform is what Coughlin expects it to be.

From Dr. Francis E. Townsend, head of the old age pension plan, came contradictory statements that still, in essence, tended to confirm a prospective amalgamation of Coughlin-prospective amalgamation of Coughlin-Townsend-share-the-wealth forces behind a presidential candidate other than President Roosevelt or Gov. Alf M. Landon.

KILL PRISON GUARD

ANGLETON, Tex., June 19, (UP)—Three Texas convicts attacked Felix Smith, a guard at Retrieve prison farm today, killed him with his own gun and escaped. Smith was taking the No. 3 plow squad to the field early today when he was attacked. There were several other prisoners in the group, but they did not participate in the break, prison officials said.

ORDERS ON FIREWORKS

INDIANAPOLIS, June 19, (UP)—State regulations restricting the sale of fireworks were issued today by Donald F. Stiver, state director of public safety.

The rules prohibit displays before June 20 and the sale of fireworks before July 1. None may be sold to children under 12 years of age.

The regulations forbid setting off fireworks near filling stations and other places where inflammable materials are stored.

DIVORCE GRANTED

Rosa M. Knight was granted a divorce Friday in Parke circuit court from Robert O. Knight. The divorce was granted on a cross complaint filed by Mrs. Knight, the defendant in the original suit.

Mrs. Knight was granted a decree of absolute divorce, was awarded alimony, and given a court order restoring her former name of Rosa M. Knauer.

M. J. Murphy represented Mrs. Knight in the case. Mr. Knight was represented by Judge Raleigh of Brazil and McFadden and McFadden of Rockville.

STATE FARM HOLSTEIN HERD ON YEARLY TEST

The herd of registered Holsteins owned by the Indiana state farm at Putnamville, has now passed the 91st day of the current herd year test. During this time a daily average yield of 1.1 lbs. of fat per cow has been maintained. Indiana Echo Gerben is high cow for the 91 days with a credit of 203.5 lbs. fat and 5792.8 lbs. milk. Eighteen other cows in the herd have topped the 100 lb. fat mark.

Among the cows completing lactation records at this time is Indiana Pontiac Segis Triune, a senior five year old, with a record of 625.4 lbs. fat and 19048 lbs. milk. Indiana Ormsby Burke Akkrum and Indiana Pontiac Inka Gerben completed records of 510.4 lbs. fat and 16732 lbs. milk and 509.2 and 15294 lbs. milk, respectively. The junior four year olds, Indiana Triune Opal Gerben and Indiana Alrosa Belle Segis completed their records with 480.1 lbs. fat and 470.0 lbs. fat, respectively. All of the lactation records were made on twice a day milking (Class C).

FIELD DAY JUNE 26

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—Experimental work on the Purdue University Soils and Crops farm, maintained by the Agricultural Experiment Station on State Road 26 just east of Lafayette, will be observed by farmers who attend the annual summer field day on Friday, June 26, according to plans announced today by Prof. A. T. Wiancko head of the agronomy department.

The experimental farm located here is more or less typical of farms in the northern two-thirds of the state, and the farmers in this section annually study the results obtained with various methods, crop strains, rotations, and fertilizers as an aid in solving their own soils and crops problems.

Numerous variety tests on various types of crops will be among the most interesting experiments to be observed by the visitors. In one experimental project, Hardigan, Ladak, and Hardistan alfalfa are being compared with Grimm and other more common varieties, while in another such test the new varieties of oats as Columbia, Cartier, and Wayne are being compared with the older strains. Miscellaneous crops, such as spring wheat, barley, flax, and Reeds Canary grass are also being grown. Several other experiments cover the type, method of application, and amount of fertilizer for corn.

The crop rotation studies being conducted include 15 different cropping systems, varying from plots that have been cropped continuously to corn for 17 years to a six year rotation of corn, corn, wheat, and three years of alfalfa.

In order to make effective study of the various experiments possible, the visitors will be conducted over the farm in small groups starting at 9 o'clock in the morning, with members of the Purdue agronomy staff who are thoroughly familiar with the work and its results acting as guides. Guides will be available in the afternoon for late arrivals.

SUNK IN QUICKSAND

Melvin Dorgan, living on the old Darby farm northeast of Coatesville, had quite an experience one day last week in some quicksand on his farm. Searching for a horse that had been missing for some time, Mr. Dorgan found it mired down in the quicksand. He attempted to get the animal out, and got mired in the sand. He held on an overhanging limb while calling to his wife, who came to his rescue. It was not until additional help arrived that Mr. Dorgan and the horse were pulled out—Coatesville Herald.

SOUTH BEND, Ind. June 19.—Harlan Crouch and James Indianapolis rum runners indicted first and second degree murder in connection with the slaying of John R. Foster, internal regent, were to be arraigned Judge Thomas W. Slick in the district federal court today.

The men were named in indictments returned last night by a grand jury.

District attorney James R. Foster was wounded fatally he and a companion gave pursuit an automobile they identified as runners.

Both Crouch, accused as the slayer, and Jacobs have contended they believed they were defending themselves against hi-jackers. They shot at the pursuing car, a high-powered rifle.

MANSION AREA SACRIFICED FOR OKLAHOMA OIL

FOREST OF DERRICKS RISES AROUND STATE CAPITOL AND RESIDENCES

OKLAHOMA CITY, (UP)—The exciting days of Oklahoma City's first boom have returned. A forest of derricks hedges in the state capital, the governor's mansion, and scores of other homes.

The rush for "black gold" started when the mansion pool, two miles north of the oil field, was opened up. The sensational production. It was "oil versus mansion" in some sections of the new Capitol-Mansion area.

Derricks, roaring steam boilers, heavy pipelines, machinery of every description is being jammed between streets. Yards, once covered with a carpet of green grass, are being gouged and plowed, and scraped into huge "slush pits."

OKLAHOMA's oil man governor, E. W. Marland, alarmed as the wells were jammed up against state property, declared a military zone over the lands, and started five wells.

The city has drilling zones, and city officials would not permit a vote to include state lands in the zones. The city council and governor were in a virtual "state of war" for weeks, until on May 12, an election was held, and the zones extended over state lands.

Marland's action profited the state $72,000 by a bonus on leases granted to oil companies. Then he turned over the already-started wells, and now the state is awaiting production and one-fourth royalty from all oil produced.

Parts of the University of Oklahoma medical school, hospital and orphan children's hospital lands are now to be leased for drilling.

Wells drilled in near the governor's mansion have produced as high as 27,000 barrels a day.

Several months ago an election was held extending the oil zones north of the state lands, but not including the state property. A forest of derricks rose quickly. Now some 200 rigs puff as their boilers with a full head of steam, drive the drill stems first into the rich Wilcox sand some 6,000 feet below the surface.

Marland visions a state income of $100,000 from oil within about a year.

The first well in the Oklahoma

City field was drilled in 1930. Thousands of wells crept north through the east side of the city. The newly opened mansion pool is an extension of the rich southern city oilfield which furnished the sensational Mary Sudik well that ran wild for days, spraying highly volatile crude over a wide area.

In the capitol, windows rattle and clang as the earth trembles beneath the plunging, grinding force of 200 drill bits piercing dolomite, limestone and other rock formations deep in the earth.

Escaping gas at times screeches, and the smell of oil is heavy in the air. Hundreds of steam plumes stretch across homes unmolested a year ago.

Houses are being moved to make room for derricks in some instances, immediately south of the field, between the northern and southern banks of derricks, lies Lincoln Terrace, one of the finest residential sections. Some say it, too, soon will be invaded. Others think the immense property damage which would be incurred by drilling will keep oil companies out of that section.

Previews and Reviews AT LOCAL THEATERS

Voncastles
Bette Davis, who won the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences award for the best performance by any actress in 1935 is starred in "The Golden Arrow," at the Voncastles tonight. The story concerns a young heiress who can buy anything she wants except the man she loves. George Brent has the principal supporting role.

"Sunset of Power," with Buck Jones and Dorothy Dix is the Saturday attraction. It is the story of a vindictive ruthless cattle baron who finds there is a greater power than that with which he rules his vast domain.

Chateau
"Three On the Trail," the latest in the series of "Hopalong Cassidy" pictures, comes to the Chateau tonight and Saturday. Made by Paramount this series is better than the average "horse opera" type of western. Clarence E. Mulford created the character of "Hopalong Cassidy," portrayed on the screen by William Boyd. Other characters in the film, although bearing names familiar to Mulford readers, have become so twisted and distorted as to become unrecognizable, especially that of "Johnny Nelson" enacted by Jimmy Ellison. It is a good "western" but the story is by Doris Schroeder, a scenario writer, and not by Clarence E. Mulford.

ITALIAN PUPILS WILL BE TAUGHT TO SPEAK LATIN
ROME (UP)—When school opens this fall Italian pupils will be faced with the unpleasant task of really learning to speak, read and write Latin, mother language of Italians.

That they will do it, there is no doubt—because Premier Mussolini has issued orders to make Latin "a living and vital language" in Italian schools.

Instructions recently distributed to teachers by Count de Vecchi di Val Cismone, Minister of Education, said the system of Latin instruction must be changed and students made to learn to handle Latin like any modern language.

Starting this fall, therefore, Italian school children will not only be taught to read Latin, but also to speak and write it. They will be told to consider Latin as a "living" rather than a "dead" language.

Italians nurse the hope Latin may be revived as an international language. Already it is noted many foreign students of church schools in Rome converse in Latin.

'CHUTE JUMPER INVENTS ROBOT FOR TEST JOBS

TIME CLOCK DEVICE PERMITS DELAYED LEAPS DURING EXPERIMENTS

TOLEDO, (UP)—Mostly for science and partly for fun, William H. Kuhn, 23 year old parachutist, has invented a "companion" for his earth ward jumps.

He is "Rob Highlow," 6 feet, ruddy, crop-mustached, and erect—everything the handsome man of the air should be. Kuhn brought Rob to Toledo's Transcontinental airport from his Upper Sandusky, O., home to see how well he could use a parachute.

Kuhn and Rob climbed 3,000 feet over the port in a plane. Then Kuhn assisted the erect six-footer to the wing's edge and assisted him over.

Down hurtled Mr. Highlow, arms and legs swaying. More naturally, he seemed to pull his rip-cord after tumbling a thousand feet. The 'chute fluttered open. A few minutes later, Rob landed neatly on both feet, while startled railroad workers nearby ran to "help" him.

His erect body seemed to sag in the middle. They felt of his "stomach." A steel spring. They looked at his face. It was fixed and staring, as if a man from Mars had dropped from the sky.

Kuhn, meanwhile, circled to earth and walked over, chuckling. "Just a dummy, boys, and I believe he's all right," he said, and tucked Rob (ot) Highlow under his arm.

Mr. Highlow has made two such jumps. Kuhn expects to use him for many more. He has patented "the only man of his kind in the business."

Prime purpose: To provide a safe method of testing 'chutes, especially those to be used in delayed jumps, which are perilous at best.

Rob Highlow is a mechanical robot. His jointed arms and legs operate from a clock-work motor. This directs him in making as perfect parachute jumps as any man.

The 'chute opens on a time-clock basis a certain number of seconds after the dummy is pushed overboard.

Kuhn himself made his first parachute jump at 16, since he's made 100. He is an employee of the census bureau of the department of commerce.

Like his creator, Rob wears jumpers for jumping. He made his first two leaps without a scratch.

PEARL OUTPUT TO BE CUT

TOKYO, (UP)—The sharp decline in prices of pearls natural and cultivated has caused Kokichi Mikimoto, Japan's "Pearl King" to plan for the closing of many of his pearl farms.

Necklaces of cultivated pearls, which a few years ago were rather highly prized have been selling in Tokyo recently for as little as $7. The difference between the cultivated and natural pearl is slight. In both cases the irritant substance getting inside the oyster. In the cultivated pearl the irritant is applied by human agency and the oyster does the rest.

Control of production is necessary, Mikimoto believes, and he plans to reduce the output to a third of its present rating. Just as in the case of the silk industry, the farmers began to grow pearls along the seashore. There are now 230 pearl culturists in Japan Mikimoto says. He intends to buy these small pearl farms.

Thereafter he will become a salesman rather than a producer. The Mikimoto interests gather and sell natural pearls also but in this line there is severe competition in other countries.

RAIL WORKERS DON GAS MASKS TO AVOID SAND

ALEXANDRIA (UP)—British workers wearing gas masks as protection from the sand, have accomplished a remarkable engineering feat in the Egyptian desert.

In 77 ways they have built a 49-mile railway through a sandy, rocky and waterless region to connect Alexandria with Marsa Matruh, the British Air Force and military headquarters and the nerve center of communications in the Western desert.

At the end of 1935 the Egyptian State Railways decided that the existing railway from Alexandria to Foka would have to be rapidly extended to Marsa Matruh. The rough road covering 49 miles between Foka and Marsa Matruh had been cut to pieces by lorries bringing up the necessary supplies to the British Army and Air Force camp there.

In face of almost overwhelming difficulties, a railway to displace this road has been laid. Lack of materials, shortage of labor, and almost continuous sand storms were among the problems which beset the engineers.

PLENTY OF JOBS FOUND FOR MENTAL PATIENTS

HARRISBURG, Pa., (UP)—There is no unemployment problem in Pennsylvania's mental institutions. The state department of welfare reports that of the 31,039 patients in 22 such institutions, 30,894 are placed in gainful and beneficial occupations. The patients are placed in lines which medical authorities believe will prove greatest benefit in restoring them to normalcy.

INDIANA CROPS HIT BY LACK OF RAIN

LAFAYETTE, Ind.—Condition of wheat in Indiana has not changed appreciably during the past month, being but one point lower than last month's index of 68, according to a report recently released by M. M. Justin, head of the department statistics at Purdue University Agricultural Experiment Station in co-operation with the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Indiana had its second successive month of sub-normal rainfall, ranging from one third of normal in the north to two-thirds of normal in the northern portions. The benefit to the Hoosier wheat crop of a warm, dry May was minimized by thin stands and Hessian Fly injury, the report indicated. An average yield of 14.5 bushels of wheat per acre or a total production of 24,896,000 bushels was forecasted, which is 3,562,000 bushels below last year's actual production.

The condition of rye in Indiana last month was considered 76 per cent of normal, as compared with 86 per cent last year. The oats crop was reported to be practically in the same condition as a year ago, and with a thin stand, which now exists, and the present dry weather, not much progress has been made. Tame hay has declined less than usual since May 1, but the dry weather generally has been unfavorable. Clover is heading short with much white top being reported, and a good first cutting of alfalfa is now being harvested. Pastures are reported as being 78 per cent or normal, two points below the ten year average but eight points above last year. New growth, which is coming along slowly has kept up appearances of pastures although the effects of dry weather are becoming quite apparent.

On the reporters' farm, 76.5 per cent of the cows, about the same as last year, were being milked. The average number of hens and pullets on these farms was 93 as compared with 88 a year ago. Since 1925, there have been but two years where the number of eggs produced per 100 hens and pullets have been higher than the 53.4 reported this month.

More Dollars, More Suspenders

QUESNELL, B. C., (UP)—Local residents are wearing both belts and suspenders. The reappearance of the latter is declared to be due to the fact that Canadian silver dollars having come back freely into circulation, additional supporting weight is needed for trousers.

SYNOPSIS:— Joe Wilson is travelling by car from Chicago to Capital City in the West to marry his girl, Katherine Grant, a high school teacher, when he is stopped by armed men and taken to the county jail in Saga. There has been a kidnapping. His description fits one of the kidnappers — a man who ate salted peanuts. Joe always carried a bag of salted peanuts. The rumor spreads that one of the kidnappers has been captured. The town buzzes like a hornet's nest with the news. Led by a lounger and jail-bird, "Bubbles" Dawson, a crowd of citizens heads for the jail to demand information about the man from the Sheriff.

Chapter Three

THE MOB-MIND IN ACTION

Sheriff Hummell received the delegation in his office. He sat at his desk and faced the half dozen men gravely.

"I'm trying to locate the District Attorney, and we'll get the truth as fast as possible. Till we do I have no right to make a statement."

"Ordinarily, Sheriff, yes," said Burmeister. "But there's a pretty nervous feeling in town—"

"We have a right to know about this kidnapper," cut in Dawson. "I don't know he is a kidnapper yet, and so neither do you."

Dawson bristled. "What're you doing, Hummell? Tryin' to protect this weasel?"

The Sheriff slowly draped a leg over the arm of his chair. "That's pretty comical, Dawson you teaching me law and order? You've been stirring up trouble for law and order ever since you got into knee pants . . . Anything more I can gent's right. We ought to be ashamed of ourselves, lettin' a stranger show us the ropes."

Amid renewed whistlings, catcalls, and cries of "He's right!" "Let's do something!" "Hop to it!" a youth leaped upon a chair and shrieked: "Come on! Let's have some fun!"

Now possessed of but a single idea, the men hurried out of the bar, walking rapidly, silently for the most part, towards the jail. The crowd gathered courage as it went along and increased in numbers—there were more than a hundred men in it now, half as many women and boys. Cries of hatred, thirst for revenge, thirst for blood, began to be heard.

Sheriff Hummell, warned by Bugs Meyers, was waiting on the top step leading up to the double doors of the two-story frame building with iron bars at the windows. Two deputies, shot-guns in their hands, flanked him. The Sheriff opened his mouth to speak, but his words were drowned in an outburst of jeers and catcalls from the mob. The stranger thrust himself forward.

"Sheriff, we want to talk to this Wilson guy,"

"Boys," warned the Sheriff, "keep out of this. We don't know yet whether the man's innocent or guilty. The District Attorney is checking on him now. Whoever he is, he's under the protection of the law."

After the jeers that met his words had subsided, he continued: "As long as I stand here you can yell yourselves hoarse, but you won't see this man."

"Then you won't stand there long!" "We'll move you!" called voices from the mob.

"Well, then, I ought to tell you that the militia is on the way here. The hubub suddenly died down; the mob looked at one another, started, shocked, the armed guardians of the law remained purposefully alert on the jail steps.

Cries of hatred, thirst for revenge, thirst for blood, began to be heard.

And as yet there had been no sign of the militia.

Parked automobiles lights picked out the forms of the Sheriff and his two deputies. Courage came back into the turbulent mob. Dawson, the stranger and a woman drew closer. Garrett followed. He addressed Hummell indignantly:

"Why didn't you tell us about the five dollar bill? You had a chance. 'Now, you've seen 'men' act," cried Dawson.

"Let him have it!" "Let's go!" "Give it to him!" cried voices, and the mob surged forward.

Katherine Grant, having arranged with her father for a sort of wedding supper for Joe and herself, and warned the minister that they would be at his house to be married at four o'clock, had gone to Sycamore Corners to meet Joe. It was now hours past the time he had set for her to be there, and there was no sign of him. A passenger car with a crowd of focused cameramen inside stopped for sandwiches and directions to Saga. When they had gone, the owner of the hot-dog stand came in shaking his head.

"The things that happen! They got somebody they suspect of that kidnapper! At Saga. Fella says his name's Joe Wilson. The mob there's tryin' to make him confess."

"Joe Wilson?" said Katherine dazedly. "Joe?" Then she realized what it meant and her voice sharpened in an agony of fear. "He's the man I'm winging for to marry! Where's a car? Lend me your car! Please, I've got to get there!"

"The boy's got my car in town, Miss. I'm in."

"When's the next bus?" "There ain't another one today." "But I've got to get to Joe! What'll I do?" She looked from the old man to his wife, who had been so sympathetic, in helpless terror. Then she ran out of the hot-dog stand, took the road that the bus with the cameramen on board had taken, running as if Joe's life depended upon her swiftness.

From his second-floor front cell Joe Wilson, half-crazed with the knowledge that it was he the mob was after, heard the Sheriff say: "Here they come again! Aim at their feet! Don't throw the tear-gas bombs too far!"

Why didn't the Sheriff and his deputies use their guns? Again and again the mob had advanced only to be driven back by the gas, only to reform and return to the attack. "There he is! That's him!" he heard voices crying, and immediately stones crashed against the walls of the jail, the bars at his window.

Joe ducked down, sprang to the door of his cell, grabbed the bars and shook them wildly, shouting: "Look-up! Guard! Come here! I want to talk to the Sheriff!"

"No shooting! Get more of the tear-gas bombs!" came Hummell's voice.

"Look-up! Look-up! Bring the Sheriff! I can prove I'm all right! Let me talk to somebody! I don't want that mob on me! Tell the Sheriff to 'phone my girl. She's waiting for me. She'll tell you who I am. Her name is Katherine Grant."

"Here, you lay off him!" shouted Dawson. "The Sheriff made a monkey out of you, too. Men, this

BALKANS RUSH REARMING; TROOPS RISE TO MILLION

Little Powers Between Swiss Frontier, Black and Aegean Seas Twice as Formidable as During War

VIENNA (UP)—A million trained to the minute soldiery, armed with the most modern implements of war, are marking time in the Danubian and Balkan countries in readiness for the sudden surprise which may herald a great holocaust.

Austria has revealed apprehensions by rushing through a general conscription plan. Inspired by Hitler's example, the government also is eager to raise its puny army of 38,000 men to a size in keeping with the task which this country of maintaining the peace in the cockpit of Europe.

In due course, Austria will add some thousands of youthful recruits to its armed forces. The time may come when it will have about 150,000 well-trained soldiery or gendarmerie, but even so the strength in the field will be small compared with the powerful armies which some of Austria's neighbors, like Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, on the one hand, and Italy and Germany, on the other, could rush into action.

In comparison with the gray hordes of the Austro-Hungarian empire, Austria's present day military might is only a phantom. At the pinnacle of its strength, the emperor's army which flung itself with Germany into the world war totalled nearly 10,000,000, while Berlin commanded at one time 12,000,000 soldiers.

If all the countries lying between the Swiss frontiers and the Black and Aegean seas were summoned to instantaneous mobilization, at least a million men would answer the call, fully trained, fully equipped, and backed by material rushed from the munition plants which would make them more formidable than twice their numbers who fought in the world war.

The most redoubtable fighting entity in southeastern Europe is without question, Yugoslavia. Born from the tiny twin states of Serbia and Montenegro, whose ill-equipped and meager forces were mowed down in the first days of the world war, the kingdom over which the 11-year-old monarch, Peter, reigns, has 14,000,000 people from which the government could pick half a million sturdy fighters within a few weeks.

Compared with a few thousand hardy mountaineers who formed the Serb and Montenegrin armies before the war, Belgrade has a "cadre" army of more than 100,000 men all-ways on the watch, to the west against Italy, to the north against Hungary (which yearns for the territory it lost to Yugoslavia) and to the east against Bulgaria.

In full fighting trim, Yugoslavia probably could muster alone a million men, backed up with 1,000 up to date fighting and bombing planes, either of French or German manufacture. At present Yugoslavia possesses a formidable air force of 700 planes and 10,000 officers and men.

Austria and Yugoslavia combined have a standing army which reaches almost 150,000 men, while if Hungary's forces were added the 200,000 mark would be reached. Technically, Hungary's forces must not exceed 35,000 men, but with the gendarmerie and armed police it has considerably more than that number in training.

Rumania would bring the total of the standing armies in southeastern Europe well above the half-million mark. With a population of nearly 19,000,000 of various races, King Carol commands more than a quarter of a million regulars, while he has a small navy and an ever increasing air force.

In time of war, Rumania probably could put 1,000 warplanes into action.

Like Austria and Hungary, Bulgaria has been kept to a skeleton army under the peace treaties, now mouldering to dust under the heels of reborn militarism. It is expected, however, that King Boris' government will bring the armed forces up to sufficient strength to ensure the safety of the nation. The treaty strength is only 20,000 men, but it is believed there are thousands of sufficiently well trained men to enable an army of at least a quarter of a million being formed at the first call.

Turkey, Albania and Greece among them have sufficient forces to bring the total of standing armies in southeastern Europe to about 1,000,000 men.

Except for countries like Rumania, Czechoslovakia and Yugoslavia, which were victorious in the war, the air strength of the nations along the Danube is meager in the extreme. Austria has virtually no military aviation. Neither has Bulgaria nor Hungary.

But if the war calls comes, all these nations can muster within a few weeks millions of men, while the military equipment of Yugoslavia, Rumania and Czechoslovakia is second only to that of the big powers, which have supplied most of the guns, bombs, tanks and airplanes.

BONES DISCLOSE ANCIENT INDIAN MULTIPLE BIRTH
HARRISBURG, Pa., (UP)—Discovery of the birth of Indian twins 15 centuries ago is as important an event to Pennsylvania archeologists as the birth of the Dionne quintuplets was to the world.

Skeletons of the infant aborigine twins, uncovered recently by WPA workers in an ancient burial ground near Somerset, Pa., are believed to be the first of their kind in the United States.

Unearthing of the twins born among the Indian tribes which roamed what is now Somerset county opens a new chapter in archeological research.

Dr. Donald A. Cadzow, state archeologist, who made positive identi-

Confessions of a New Bride

"My MODERN GAS RANGE Takes All The Guesswork Out of Cooking"

Look for these 4 features in a gas range

Automatic top lighter saves time... burners light automatically as gas is turned on.

Convenient Broiler prepares meats and other foods the correct way... under a flame.

Oven Heat Control is correct... perfect baking results... "guess work" and frequent watching.

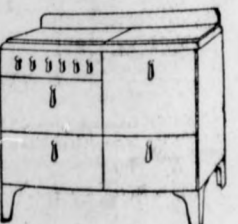

Thick Oven Insulation... heavy rock wool keeps off the heat in the oven... it belongs.

No jokes about this bride's biscuits! She has one of those new, modern gas ranges that make cooking easy and dependable for beginners as well as for experts. There's no guesswork for there is nothing new to learn about gas cooking, even though the new ranges are as modern as next year's automobiles.

The newly marrieds' budget will be more ample, too, with a modern gas range, because economy is one of the outstanding advantages of gas cooking. The new, improved burners do more cooking for the same amount of gas and the heavily insulated ovens and broilers are more efficient.

Gas cooking is economical and gas ranges are inexpensive. With only a small down payment and convenient monthly terms you can bring your kitchen up-to-date today with a modern gas range. See the new models on display at your dealer's store or in your gas company's showrooms.
